

Things and People

By Lucas Lewis

In today's society things get treated as people,
And people get used like things.
Even though every individual has his or her values,
It's the material things that the attention always seems to bring.
Like a plain bird that chirps, to one that can freely sing.
Things might make you feel like kings or queens but where would you be when these things leave?
As I proceed, let the things not be the reasons why, my friends stay by my side.
But just know the real ones don't need any things to show how they gon' ride.
Things may make you feel fly, maybe way high up in the sky, but loyalty, trust and respect sticks with you until you die.
Why things get more love is beyond me, because people are unique you can't copy.
Life is precious so stop acting sloppy, hope this message wakes you up like a hot pot of coffee.
If you can't feel what i'm saying go wait in the lobby, because rhyiming is my hobby, and Id love to let you all go home knowing that a some thing will never be better than somebody.
Because as people what we have achieved and accomplished is awesomeness, to be where we stand today from the white house to home offices, things just couldn't have made it all happen, Things don't lead, make promises or make us complete. Things won't set any goals, or fight through things that they believed at first they couldn't defeat.
